DECOR

ABOVE A house amidst the fynbos, at the sea – the best of both worlds. It's situated between the beach and the Harold Porter botanical gardens, which extend up the mountain. The views are to the south and the summer conditions are extremely windy, but the layout of cottages around a courtyard creates sheltered sunny spots. Striped chairs on a wooden deck look out over the fynbos to the icy waters of the Atlantic Ocean. Stone walls lend an air of rustic charm. French-style blue trim gives a seaside air with a rural note, while small openings with shutters make it easy to batten down the hatches.

OPPOSITE The open-plan sitting room has built-in concrete seating units with fitted cushions in blue checks, stripes and textures (fabrics from Colonial House). Simple seagrass rugs from Rowley & Hughes offset the dark-tinted screed floor. Built-in shelves in alcoves on either side of the room contain family treasures.
